

LAIKA

DOG IN SPACE

After the successful educational application sCool Math, which was progressively created for the most widespread mobile platforms (iOS, Android, Windows Phone), ARTAX is introducing another achievement.

The arcade mobile game entitled "LAIKA: Dog in Space!" was inspired by the harsh fate of the first living creature to orbit the Earth: a female dog named Laika who was launched into outer space within the Russian space programme.

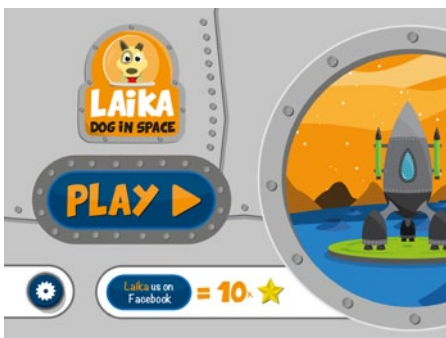

The development team could not come to terms with the dramatic fate of the Soviet hero; they decided to give Laika a chance to live and change history for good. Something had to be done.

With the air-conditioning unit overheating during the flight, Laika finds herself wrecked on a remote planet. Her only chance of survival is to explore the alien place and find sufficient resources to repair the rocket to take her back to the Earth.

The game consists of thirty levels divided into three episodes. These take Laika from a desolate desert to discovering a city as well as below the ground. As a bonus at the end of the game, a huge mission opens up to those who manage to obtain enough stars.

Features:

- ★ fascinating story
- ★ 30 levels
- ★ 3 unique environments
- ★ huge super mission
- ★ easy motion control
- ★ attractive graphics and original music

The game is available for devices with iOS. It is planned to be transferred to other popular platforms in the future. You can download the game for free directly from AppStore.
